Spring Camp

The Spring Camp is a outpost of the School of the Griffin outside Kaer Seren, located two hours away by horse, and connected with the second and third phases of The Voyage, known to Griffin Adepts as The Torturer. Similar to The Killer in the fortress of the School of the Wolf, Kaer Morhen, The Torturer is a path beset with obstacles used by witchers to train and improve their running speed and controlled breathing techniques. The main difference from The Killer is its length and its role in acclimatizing Griffin Adepts to adapt to adverse weather conditions that they may encounter in future contracts as full-fledged witchers. Due to Kaer Seren's coastal location along a mountain range, The Torturer comprises three phases: one on the highest peak of the mountain range, one descending from the mountain range, and one near the coast where adepts must jump over a group of slippery rocks to return to the fortress. The Torturer was also utilized to train Griffin Adepts for the Trial of the Mountains.

Therefore, the Spring Camp was established as both a medical outpost and a place where more experienced Griffins could observe the adepts and correct their techniques before proceeding to the more challenging phases of The Torturer. As the name implies, the camp operated during the spring. Additionally, a summer camp existed, located a day's horse ride from Kaer Seren, serving various other functions.

What is The Abattoir?

Imagine like The Killer in Kaer Morhen but a little more complex.
